Cobb Removed For Safekeeping.
Herbert Cobb, the Hopkinsville young man who murdered Miss Ella Cravens, his sweetheart, Saturday night, has been removed to the Bowling Green jail to prevent mob violence.

Sheriff Johnson was given a tip, which was considered reliable, that a mob would attempt to take Cobb from the county jail and lynch him. Sheriff Johnson communicated this fact to County Judge Knight, who at once issued an order for the prisoner's removal. Mr. Johnson and Deputy Jewel Smith placed Cobb aboard the Monday midnight train and turned him over to the Warren county jailer early Tuesday morning.

A mob would doubtless have a hard time getting at a prisoner in the Christian county jail, but such an effort might result in bloodshed, and the authorities very wisely decided to take no chances.

Cobb continued to play his insanity role until after he left Guthrie on the way to Bowling Green, when he is said to have gained his composure. He has not appeared entirely rational at any time since his crime was committed, however.

Banker Loses.

An unusual law suit was tried out in the Henderson circuit court this week, when A. L. King, a farmer, got a judgement against Dr. A. S. Denton, president of the defunct Robards Bank for $200. King based his suit upon grounds that Denton, as president of the bank, had persuaded him to buy stock in the institution, representing the business to be in good condition, when as a matter of fact it was not only insolvent, but was also $14,000 behind as a result of mismanagement by C. W. Sherrill, now under indictment for perjury in connection with the cave-in of the business.

ONE PRICE TO ALL

GIVING THEM A TREAT

"They're regular lickers, my dear," declared Billy. "You are wasting your time on them."

"For shame, Billy! You know how glad we were to be invited out when we lived there after we were married. I'm going to take pity on them and let them see how easy our home is. I'm going to give them the simplest things, well cooked, so they won't go back and say that I'm extravagant. Then she hurried into the kitchen to give a few final directions to her little maid.

"Bertha, be sure to take the plates from the left and be very careful not to spill anything. Mix the salad at the last moment so the apples won't change color and don't let the creamed cabbage burn. It burns so easily. I know my guests will enjoy everything, as I boarded where they do the first six weeks after I was married, and I got very tired of it. There's the bell—I'll go.

"I'm so glad to see you, girls," she was saying a moment later. "Put your hats here on the bed."

"What a perfectly lovely flat," said Maude. "It's so sweet of you to ask us to a home meal!"

"We're going to have you to dinner at the boarding house, only it seems a shame to ask you away from a place like this," said Emily.

"I'd love to come some time," declared the hostess. "One gets tired of planning meals, though I do take a pride in my simple menus."

"I suppose it is a pleasure to think out the meals," said Maude. "You can at least have a change. Take it from me, dear, that cabbage in some form or other for 365 days in each year palls on one's appetite, disguise it as you will."

"I—I think it's nice creamed," stammered the hostess.

"Not if you had it as often as we do at the boarding house. Cabbage is as much a part of our lives there as gossip is. By the way, they say that Mrs. Softus has gone to her mother's."

"Excuse me a minute. I—I think there is something burning."

The hostess hurried into the kitchen to make a change in her menu. A minute later Bertha started for the nearest store.

"Isn't everything all right?" asked Maude. "Isn't that your maid running down the street?"

"I sent her on an errand. I hope you and Emily brought good appetites."

"You were a darling to ask us to lunch," said Emily. "A change from boarding house fare will do us lots of good. I'm as hungry as a wolf!"

"So am I," chimed in Maude. "I could just eat anything."

"Except apples!" exclaimed Emily. "I think our landlady has bought a carload and wants to get rid of them. Apple sauce to the right of us, apple pie to the left of us, salad and fried in front of us."

"Excuse me a minute. I'll have to go to the kitchen."

"Something burning again?"

The hostess returned soon somewhat flushed. Then Bertha was seen hurrying down the street again.

"It must be nice to have the stores so near," said Maude, glancing at the clock. "But you mustn't go to any trouble for us."

"No, indeed," declared Emily. "We like everything. I thought I smelled tomatoes—I just love them—if they are not spoiled with sweetening."

"I—I didn't know you disliked sugar in them. Excuse me; I will see how near luncheon is ready."

"Mrs. Cary is terribly uneasy about this luncheon," said Maude to Emily. "I don't believe Mr. Cary allows her to entertain much. I hate a stingy man, don't you? They say they are awfully economical. If she makes another journey to that kitchen I shall starve. Anyhow, we'll have some good home made food!"

"I think she ought to keep a slate in the kitchen and make a note of things from the grocery," said Emily. "She'll lose that maid—sending her out so often."

The luncheon of cold boiled ham, canned corn and other products of the nearest store was received in disappointed silence by Mrs. Cary's guests. In fact, it passed off so badly that Mrs. Cary could hardly wait for her guests to go so that she might have a good cry. During the lachrymal flood Billy entered.

"My luncheon was a failure. They wouldn't eat anything. I had to make a new menu and—Bertha has given notice. Please, Billy, let's go to boarding. No one appreciates—"

"Is this what they wouldn't have?" demanded Billy, surveying the dinner. It looks great to little Willie. Um! Creamed cabbage, apple salad, tomatoes and—say, you must have been a chef in some previous existence. Boarding, indeed! The trouble is those girls have the kicking habit—a boarding house disease, my dear. We'll not take any more chances of catching it."

"You really like these things?" asked Billy's wife, cheering up. "Then I'm glad the girls didn't want them. I think some is best, too. Those horrid girls can just go to a restaurant next time they want a change of fare, can't they, Billy?"

It Pays to Advertise.

R. L. Dungan, one of the most wide awake and up to date merchants in the county, was selling at an average of about $50 a day a few weeks ago, but he determined to have a sale. We rented him a page in this paper for one issue and furnished 1,000 bills. He scattered his bills through the county and we sent out his advertisements in the paper and on May 4 the sale began and continued through May 13, and although he had been selling at an average of $50 a day let every merchant in the county take notice to these figures and see the difference: The first day..... $164.67 The second day..... 105.52 The third day..... 159.05 The fourth day..... 102.85 The fifth day..... 164.42 The sixth day..... 191.18 The seventh day..... 132.57 The eighth day..... 181.57 The ninth day..... 162.88 He took in during these nine days $1,364.72. Divide it by nine and it gives an average of $151.63. Now there are twenty merchants in the county that need to air their business out the same way. Wonder if they will do it?—Munfordville News.

Police Hounds Do Good Work.
Such good results are daily being obtained by the employment of police hounds in Germany that the authorities have decided to increase the number of animals for use in connection with the police force. No fewer than 120 policemen have volunteered to take a three months' course of instruction in the management and care of the dogs.

Too Much For Her.
"Don't you want me to give you a ride on your sled?" asked a lady of a small boy whom she met trudging along, dragging his sled behind him. The boy looked up at the lady solemnly, then spread his arms and said: "I am an airship!" And the lady hurried on, recognizing her total inability to cope with such a wonderful machine.

Delicate Hint.
The following verse will be found on the door of the parish church at Stretton-on-Avon, Derbyshire, England: "If in this church you'd like to see, call at the rectory for the key, and if your heart is so inclined, the church expenses box you'll find."
